How to publish skills, knowledge packs, agents, workflows, and bundles on the DCNetwork marketplace.

DCNetwork's marketplace is a creator economy where automated quality scoring replaces star ratings, and creators keep the largest share of every sale.

What you can sell

Skills (from $3), knowledge packs, agents, workflows, and full composite bundles — up to complete trading strategies with audited backtests. If it plugs into the platform, it can be listed.

The revenue split

Split	Who / what
60% — Creator	You, the author of the asset
17% — Serving node	The member datacenter delivering the buyer's traffic
17% — Platform	Storefront, moderation, settlement, discovery
6% — Burned	Feeds the deflation engine on every sale

Quality scoring, not star ratings

Assets are ranked by automated quality scoring instead of gameable star ratings — so a genuinely useful asset surfaces on merit, not on who mobilized the most reviews.

Pricing & getting featured

Price for repeat metered use, not a one-off. The first 100 published assets get featured homepage placement for 30 days; after that, placement is algorithmic.

Your first asset — checklist

- Pick one job your asset does well and name it plainly.
- Write a one-line value promise and a short description.
- Set a price that makes sense per use.
- Publish, then iterate from real usage signals.
